Overview

Key Features

Shoulder straps evenly distribute the weight of the tools (e.g. chainsaw) through the harness. The rigid seat strap provides a comfortable and safer position during work in suspension from the climbing line. The wide, padded belt is used in conjunction with the positioning lanyard around the tree-trunk.

Designed for comfort and safety Commonly used in conjunction with a climbing line, spikes and a work-positioning lanyard, the full body harnesses are suitable for heavier tree-pruning operations, for example when using a chainsaw. The climber is positioned against the trunk and is not required to move around the tree.
